I hope that "Layman" will not insist upon the discussion, or think that I write tor any other reason than in the interest of A Catholic View of the Recent Discussion. Editors of the Intelligencer:

Will you please permit me through your paper to say a little concerning that which takes up the greatest part of your literary and scientific Investments. I have observed the Bishop Cummins-movement in the Episcopal Church. It has raised quite a hub-bub among my Protestant friends. It seems that another change another sect is wanted. Thus it goes; sect after sect, first one man's views and them another. Well, the Protestant Church has had many changes since the days of Henry the VIII. There was Luther, with his views, and Calvin, with his views, to start with Assured Section 1987. days of Henry the VIII. There was Luther, with his views, to start with. As much as they may all talk about the Roman Catherollic Church, they can't trace its origin to a lustful man like Henry the VIII. a Catholics have that consolation at any rate. The confusions and schemes now to be seen appear natural enough to them. And yet all these contending people are going to heaven together, believing as they do in the one Bible. Surely sone body must be wrong. The Protestant man will point you to the Bible to save your soul. But where was the Bible about three caruties ago? Why, my dear sir, the Bible was such a rare article then that only one ant of every two thousand could procure a coy. For instance, Martin Luther, when he had a Bible, was obliged to chain it to the wall, as did other people. Them pray, my Protestant friend, what did a poor man do to save his soul in these days? I suppose every ignorant poor person went to hell, if it is true that the way to get there is to read your Bible. And if that is necessary to day, all I have to say is God help our West Virginians, for there are some of them who never see either a Bible or a preacher. In this case the motto must be, "God help the poor; the rich can help themselves."

From an article on "Mathematics fundamental law of our being is this, that ences all other parts in some degree. "A policy upon any of the most pressing questions before the country. The Democratic party, superfluous and hopeless, is not even a skillful opposition, but, with a folly that would be inconceivable except for fourteen years' experience of it, nominates Fernando Wood for Speaker, and resists the civil rights bill. There was never a time within the memory of men now active in public affairs when party in one member suffer, all the members suffer with it." We have all, no doubt, seen instances where a change of method or motive, in some one particular, has or motive, in some one particular, has possession of the Government, has no man never shuffles in his steps," says the acute thinker, without shuffling also in his mental habits.' This is a necessary conor motive, in some one particular, has changed a whole character. In accordcuanged a whole character. In accord-ance with this principle, the result of such training (mathematical) shows itself in greater accuracy in all mental exercises. Would it be going too far to assert that in all which the girl undertakes corresin all which the girl undertakes corresponding improvement will be shown? Certainly this is not beyond my own belief. In short, then, the points where mothematical studies tell upon our girls are three in number—discriminations between essentials and non-essentials, logic in reasoning, and accuracy of statement. Will any one assert that these are not as desirable for cirls as for how or serious of stam, and no smoke is visible as it will any one user; that these are not as silently and smoothly glides along on the city tracks. I am assured that it has been tried on grades fully equal to those on the streets of Baltimore, and worked, with complete success."

DISEASER OF IMPRIPAYERS

her becomes blighted with our own, DISEASES OF IMPRUDENCE. When the misgrided and impredent votary of pleasure finds he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease, it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of shame or dread of discovery deters him from applying to those who, from education and respectability, can alone befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their appearance such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, not transl pains in the head, face and extremetics, progressing with frightful rapidity, till at last the palate of the mouth or the bones of the nose fall in, and the victim of this swind disease becomes a horrid object of commiseration, till death puts a period to his dreadful enferting from whence no traveler returns."

It is a melancholy fact that thousands fall victims to this terrible disease, owing to the machilininess of ignorant pretenders, who, by its use of that DHADLY POINCE, MERGURY, rain the constitution, and make the residue of life nier able.
